Chung Chi Students Started off their Exchange Programme with Fudan University, Shanghai

December 29, 1995

10 students from Chung Chi College, The Chinese University of Hong Kong, arrived in Shanghai to look into the social welfare and services provided by this major city in China.

This visit has kicked off the student exchange programmes of Chung Chi College and Fudan University, Shanghai. Delegates from Fudan University will visit Hong Kong in return later in 1996.

During their 10-day visit to Shanghai, Chung Chi students will discuss the social welfare situations in Hong Kong and Shanghai with their counterparts in Fudan University. The agenda includes social services for the handicapped, children and youth as well as different methods of raising funds to support the services in the two cities. They will also visit various social welfare institutions and government departments in Shanghai.

This visit is also part of the non-structured general education programme of Chung Chi College. It aims to broaden the horizon of students, raise students' concern with society and cultivate their ability to do research into different issues.

The exchange programme is kindly sponsored by Mr. Eddie Lu, member of the Chung Chi College Board of Trustees.

The students will return to Hong Kong on January 6, 1996. Their report and highlights of this visit will be exhibited in the lower lounge of Chapel and Chung Chi Tang (Student Centre) of Chung Chi College from January 19 to 26, 1996.
