The Hongkong/Bank Social Work Scholarships were established in 1965 to mark the centenary of the Bank and to attract some of the best students at the two Universities to careers in Social Work. The Scholarships are tenable at the University of Hong Kong by students admitted to the undergraduate courses in Social Work or the two year post-graduate programme in Social Work, and at The Chinese University of Hong Kong by third and fourth year, and two-year postgraduate students majoring in Social Work. Awards are made on the basis of academic ability, character, personality, motivation and sense of responsibility of the candidates and their genuine interest in and suitability for careers in social work. Selection of candidates is made irrespective of sex, race, and nationality, but preference is given first to candidates domiciled in Hong Kong and then to those in other parts of the Far East who are proficient in the Chinese language.
