The Chinese University of Hong Kong staged the second part of the Tanner Lecture entitled "Unity and Plurality: Reflections on Ethnic Relations in China" yesterday (November 17) in the R C Lee Lecture Hall of the University.

The speaker, Professor Fei Xiao-tong, a world renowned Chinese social anthropologist and Professor of Sociology at the Beijing University, delivered the first part of the Lecture on November 15, in which he reviewed the theme of ethnic plurality and unity in China from a historical perspective.

In the second part of the Lecture yesterday, Professor Fei looked into the future of the configuration of the Chinese people and explored such themes as government policies and ethnic equality, industrialization and cooperation among different ethnic groups, and modernization and assimilation of ethnic minorities.

The topics will be further discussed by scholars from different parts of the world in a seminar to be held today (November 18) from 2:30 pm to 5:00 pm in the Cho Yiu Conference Hall of the University Administration Building. The seminar will be chaired by Professor Ambrose King, Professor of Sociology at The Chinese University. All are welcome.
