新聞稿 PRESS RELEASE

At the invitation of The Chinese University of Hong Kong, a renowned sociologist from China, Professor Fei Xiao-tong (費孝通), will be visiting the University's Department of Sociology from July 1 to 5.

While in Hong Kong, Professor Fei will be engaged in a series of intellectual exchange with staff and students in the University.

Professor Fei will also be the main speaker in a public symposium to be organized jointly by the University's Department of Sociology and Centre for Contemporary Asian Studies. The topic of the symposium will be "The Social Significance of the Development of Small Towns in China" about which Professor Fei has recently conducted considerable field study in Jiangsu Province. The symposium will be held on Tuesday, July 3, at 2:30 p.m. in the C.K. Tse Room at Chung Chi College on the University Shatin Campus. Interested members of the public are welcome to attend. Professor Fei will speak mainly in Putonghua, to be supplemented by brief explanations in English.
