CU launches outings for children cancer patients to boost quality care

To improve the quality of life of children who are battling the traumatic diseases of cancer, the Department of Paediatrics of the Faculty of Medicine, The Chinese University of Hong Kong, is teaming up with Camp Quality, an international camping and support programme for young cancer patients, to launch a series of pioneering outings and recreational programmes.

These new programmes are expected to benefit as many as 500 children cancer patients of the Department of Paediatrics, which is a leading centre for childhood malignancies and bone marrow transplant.

You are cordially invited to send a representative to cover a press conference to announce the Camp Quality programmes, which will be followed by a tour of the Lady Pao Children's Cancer Centre at the Prince of Wales Hospital. Details are as follows:
