

新聞稿 PRESS RELEASE

An international conference entitled "The Third Conference on United States - Asia Economics Relations" will be held at The Chinese University of Hong Kong from June 22 to 25, 1987.

The Conference is jointly organized by the University's Faculty of Business Administration and the American Committee on Asian Economic Studies (ACAES). ACAES is an inter-university programme in the United States founded in 1982. It is administered by an Executive Board of 33 economists from many universities and research institutions in the United States. The Director of ACAES is Prof. M. Jan Dutta of Rutgers University.

The theme of the Conference is "Asia Pacific Economies: Promises and Challenges". Over 70 economists, scholars in management, economics and other related fields and bankers from the United States, Canada, Europe, China, India, Japan, Korea and other Southeast Asian countries will participate in the Conference. About 50 papers will be presented in the Conference. These papers will focus on foreign capital flows, trade flows, productivity studies, role of government sector, tourism, long-run industrialization of Asia-Pacific economies and its impact on United States - Asia economic relations, etc.

Prof. Franco Modigliani, 1985 Nobel Laureate in Economics, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, U.S.A., will participate in the Conference and deliver a keynote speech.

The Conference will officially be opened by the Vice-Chancellor of the University, Dr. Ma Lin, on Monday, June 22 at 9 a.m. at the Conference Hall of University Administration Building.

Further details of the Conference can be obtained from Mr. Joseph Law, Faculty Office of Business Administration, at 0-6952784.
