CUHK Offers Postgraduate Programmes in Applied Linguistics

The Department of English of The Chinese University of Hong Kong will offer this September two new postgraduate programmes in Applied Linguistics leading to M.A. and M.Phil degrees. The programmes are now open for applications.

The M.A. in English (Applied Linguistics) is a one-year full-time course, while the M.Phil in English (Applied Linguistics) requires two years of full-time or three years of part-time study.

The new programmes are designed to provide a foundation training in linguistics and applied linguistics, with a strong emphasis on the application of theory to practical issues of language learning and teaching.

The courses will cover such areas as foundations in general linguistics and applied linguistics, special topics in phonetics and phonology, syntax and semantics, psycholinguistics, sociolinguistics, language acquisition, contrastive linguistics, curriculum design and materials preparation, testing, and classroom language research etc.

The deadline for application is March 31, 1992. Applicants are required to attend the entrance examination in early May. Further details can be obtained from the English Department by phone 609-7452, or fax 603-5270.
