1995 HONG KONG RHODES SCHOLAR WILL STUDY LAW AT UNIVERSITY COLLEGE, OXFORD

A Law student from the University of Hong Kong has been chosen as the 1995 Hong Kong Rhodes Scholar. He is Mr. Mak Ka Hon, Keith, whom the Hong Kong Rhodes Scholarship Selection Committee described as "an all-rounder with varying potentials".

Mr. Mak has already obtained his degree of Bachelor of Laws last year and is currently pursuing a one-year course entitled Postgraduate Certificate in Laws. He hopes to further enhance his professional legal qualifications and will study for a second Bachelor degree of Civil Law at University College, Oxford.

The Rhodes Scholarship was established under the will of Sir Cecil Rhodes. Selected Rhodes Scholars are expected to possess high intellectual merits and scholastic attainments, alongside qualities of outstanding personality and physical vigour. The first award in Hong Kong was made in 1985. Last year, an honours graduate in Business Administration from The Chinese University of Hong Kong has been chosen as the Hong Kong Rhodes Scholar to pursue also a Law degree in Oxford.

The Office of Student Affairs of The Chinese University of Hong Kong provides the secretarial services for the Rhodes Scholarship Selection Committee in the Territory.
