Chinese University Offers Public Comprehensive View of University Life at 30th Anniversary Exhibition

The Chinese University of Hong Kong is staging an exhibition for the general public on various aspects of the university as part of its 30th anniversary celebrations. The exhibition will be held at the City Hall Exhibition Hall and will run from Friday, March 26th through Monday, March 29th.

The Hon. John Chan Cho-chak, Secretary for Education and Manpower, and Sir Quo-wei Lee, Chairman of the University Council, will officiate at the opening ceremony on Friday, March 26th at 11:15 am at the City Hall Exhibition Hall.

The exhibition will feature a comprehensive range of exhibits to describe university work and life. Subjects to be covered include the history of the university, the foundation colleges, programmes of studies and admission, teaching and research, students and alumni and campus facilities.

There will also be exhibits related to the university's links with overseas institutions and the Hong Kong community as well as a book display by the Chinese University Press.

The exhibition displays will be supported by video and slide shows as well as a live stage performance to provide a more animated view of university life.

An important section of the exhibition will deal with the future. Entitled "Towards the 21st Century" this part of the exhibition will focus on the university's role in helping to meet Hong Kong's future academic and social challenges and its expanding position in the global academic community.

To encourage the widest possible public exposure, satellite exhibitions will be held in various commercial centres around Hong Kong from May to November 1993. These venues include: MTR stations (Tai Koo, Central and Kwun Tong) May 24-31; Landmark June 1-3; Pacific Place July 9-11; and Ocean Terminal July 16-18.

All interested members of the public are encouraged to attend. Admission is free.
