新聞稿 PRESS RELEASE

The Chinese University of Hong Kong announces that its Diploma Course in Training Management has gained recognition from the Institute of Training and Development (ITD) in the U.K. As a result, holders of the University's Diploma in Training Management are also entitled to the award of the Institute's Diploma in Training Management on application to the ITD. The recognition indicates that people in Hong Kong who are involved in training need not go to the U.K. to further develop their professional qualifications from now on.

The University's Diploma Course in Training Management, first introduced in October 1982, is organized by the Department of General Business Management & Personnel Management in collaboration with the Department of Extramural Studies. The Course is intended to provide further training to people who are interested in strengthening their professional skills in training management. The first class of 26 students will be completing their studies towards the end of July 1983.

As announced earlier, the 1983/84 Course will commence on September 17. Classes are conducted on the University campus on every Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. until mid-June next year. For application forms, entry requirements and further details of the Course, please contact Dr. Poon Wai-keung, the Programme Director, at 0-6331111 Ext. 791/769. Deadline for application is July 20, 1983.
