CUHK Offers Postgraduate Programmes in Nursing

To meet the rising demand for postgraduate nursing studies in Hong Kong, The Chinese University of Hong Kong announces the launching of the MPhil Degree in Nursing in 1992-93. The programme is now open for applications.

The first of its kind to be offered in the territory, the new nursing programme will provide academic advancement and research training for the growing number of qualified nurses, which will thus contribute further to the professional development of nursing in Hong Kong.

The MPhil programme is offered by the newly-established Department of Nursing at the Chinese University which has successfully offered the Bachelor of Nursing Degree last year. The provision of this higher research degree programme is consistent with the aims of the Department to raise the status of nursing in Hong Kong and gain international recognition as a centre of research and academic excellence.

The new programme is a research-based degree which requires the submission of a major research thesis on a topic of direct relevance to nursing, and completion of coursework units designed to provide the knowledge and skills needed to undertake an independent research study.

Registered nurses with a recognized degree in nursing or a related discipline, and at least two years' experience as a qualified nurse are eligible to apply on a full-time (a minimum of two years) or part-time (a minimum of three years) basis.

Application forms are now obtainable from the Graduate School of The Chinese University of Hong Kong. The deadline for application is May 2, 1992. For further details and enquiries on the new programme, please contact Professor Ken Sellick, Department of Nursing at tel 609 7948, or the Graduate School at tel 609 8977.
