新聞稿 PRESS RELEASE

19th December, 1990

About two hundred secondary school teachers, mainly career masters and senior form teachers have recently attended a preview of a video programme entitled "Understanding Chinese University: Faculty Highlights".

Professor S W Tam, Pro-Vice-Chancellor of the university said, before the preview, "This is the first time a video programme has been produced by the University targeted at secondary students. The aim is to enhance the understanding of teachers and students regarding the latest university development."

The video programme provides a comprehensive picture of the university as well as each department of the five faculties (Arts, Business Administration, Medicine, Science & Social Science). Information on the academic programmes offered, career prospects of students, facilities and services on campus, research opportunities, etc. are provided in this 90-minute tape. Copies of the video tape are also provided for viewing by students in their schools.

A Faculty Open Day is also scheduled on January 12, 1991 for secondary six and seven students to visit individual faculties and to obtain first hand information on the faculties and academic programme they are interested in.

A recent recruitment exercise aimed at Form 7 students and private candidates for 1991-92 academic year has commenced. About 17,000 application forms have so far been distributed. Applications will close in early January.

For enquiries on CU Faculty Open Day, please contact at Mrs Alice So (Information) at 6952359.
